

Review Facebook Messenger

Facebook Inc

Facebook Messenger is an application owned by Facebook that doubles as an instant messaging service and has millions of users worldwide

Instant messaging applications are possibly the most popular of all those available on both Google Play and the App Store. This type of applications, in a very short time, has become essential for most users, thanks to the communication options they offer us with our friends, family, or colleagues.

Today the most popular are WhatsApp Messenger, Telegram, Line, or Facebook Messenger, which is what we are dealing with today, although there are a huge number of them available for download, in most cases completely free of charge.

The app owned by Facebook, which in turn is also the owner of WhatsApp, began being part of the social network until 2011, and then "became independent" on mobile devices in the form of an application. This initially was not well received by most users, but over time, all or almost all of us have become accustomed.

Today, although we can use the service if we access Facebook from any web browser, we must absolutely download the application if we want to use it from a mobile device, regardless of whether it has an Android or iOS operating system. It currently has millions of users around the world, although at the moment it is very far from the number of users who have WhatsApp or Telegram, for example.

What are the benefits of Downloading Facebook Messenger Free

One of the things people ask the most is how to hide messages on messenger. This is very easy without using any application, just enter the Facebook Messenger application select the conversation you want to hide, if you are on your mobile we must swipe to the right to see the options and from the computer click on the 3 points that appear in the conversation and we select archive, this makes it automatically disappear from your inbox. The message is not deleted but the conversation is hidden as archived, if you want to find that conversation again, you must search in your chat the name of that friend and open a new conversation with him, a chat and the history between you will automatically be downloaded. had been filed.

You can also change the size of the emojis, you can hold it down for a few seconds and this grows, getting really big.

If you want to change the like button of the chats, it may be that for a contact you generally use particular emojis constantly, because we will make it very simple. We press on the contact of our friend with whom we are in constant interaction, there is an option that says emoji and we can choose there which emojis you will use with that particular person. Surely for another contact, you will choose other different emojis.

It is interesting to also learn how to delete messages for everyone, as soon as we go to a contact to a chat we hold down the message if we are on the mobile and the option to delete for all or delete for me will appear. If you choose the first option it is removed for you and for all your contacts but if you choose the second option it will be removed just for you.

You will wonder how to deactivate the active state, let's imagine that you enter messenger but you do not want other contacts to see you online, or perhaps you want to enable only one of them to see you online and the others do not. In the upper left part of the mobile application where our photo appears if we click there we can see that there is an option that says green active status and we click there to deactivate the option if we use this option in the same way that you do not you teach, nor are you shown if they are available. But it can be useful if you want to speak to a single person in particular without anyone knowing.

There is a trick in the emojis in which you can change their color, let's imagine that you do not feel identified with the color of the emojis, the system offers you different color options for the emojis, from light skin color to darker tones. This is a very fun, inclusive, and original option.

As you can see, the Free Facebook Messenger Application has infinite benefits for the user and is easy to use.

Pros	Cons
- It is completely free to download and use, something that does not happen with all applications of this type - It has a simple and clean simple, something that not all applications of this type can boast today - You can message unlimitedly without cost just being connected to the internet. - You can make calls to your friends.	- The resource consumption of this application is very high in some cases, reaching the point of having to remove the application from our device - Despite having millions of users worldwide, very few actually use it actively - It is difficult to protect your privacy - It consumes a lot of phone battery
